

Data Protection

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) came into force on 25th May 2018, and in many quarters the purpose of this regulation has caused confusion. Hereunder is our explanation about what data we collect and store, and how we store it.

GDPR is primarily relating to persons and individuals and any such data that could be used fraudulently to identify or partially identify any such individual. The majority of the services which Ital Transport (UK) provides are of a business to business nature, and any such data which we do collect is purely on a 'legitimate interests' basis.

We would also like to state that we also comply with the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations (PECR) with regards to marketing, the rules of which presently run alongside GDPR.

In brief:

-  Ital Transport (UK) only collates data from customers and suppliers on a 'need to know' basis in order to fulfil its duties as a service provider of transport services.
-  All data stored electronically is secure, firewalled, and is role-based depending on the permissions of any individual employee.
-  Ital Transport (UK)'s I.T. systems are supported by companies who also have robust measures in place to ensure cyber safety.
-  Very little data is now stored manually, but that which is stored in this way is in a secure environment, and any that is old and no longer required by legislation is permanently destroyed.
-  We only hold data as long as is legally necessary to comply with company laws and regulations.
